MISS SARA STRINGER MARRIES MR. MANN

A wedding of beauty and simplicity was that of Miss Sara Stringer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marion O. Stringer, and William Thomas Mann, son of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Mann Sr., on the afternoon of April 18th, at 5 o'clock at the Hill Baptist Church, with the Rev. L. Bert Jopson officiating. The young bride appeared before an altar backed with palms and branched candelabra with lighted tapers and candles of mixed white flowers and greenery for the occasion.

Mrs. Ann Steed, organist, and Miss Delores Schott, soloist, presented a program of wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a dress of Chantilly lace, having a fitted bodice with scalloped neckline and long sleeves pointed over the hands. The bride's skirt extended into a scalloped chapel-length train. Her finger-tip veil was caught to a lace cap with delicate tulle. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis centered with a white orchid.

..Between Us..

BY RUTH BEAVER

When Robert Benson was stationed in India during World War II he was told about an old man in one of the cities that had many beautiful opals. He had never seen his daughter, who was born after he left for foreign service, so he looked years ahead and purchased several of the stones to bring home, hoping some day to give them to her. He kept them until they were almost too old to wear. This past week he celebrated her tenth birthday and Robert had one of the jewels to mount one of the opals, and he gave it to her. It is a beautiful ring, and one that she is sure she will cherish all her life. Since coming home Robert has a son and a very young daughter, who he imagines will also be getting one later on. It isn't too often that one can learn to play a piano and their closest friends, even though it seems impossible, can play a piano. He really makes a piano talk, and since he and Ann have been going together he has taught her to play. Ann kept this from her friends, and recently when they needed some one to play at one of their meetings they all were amazed at her as she sat down and played as one who had studied many months. People are making plans for the summer, and length going to the beach. The church before vacation, plans are already under foot for many nice trips. Rosalie and Al Sutherland are going to New York and visit friends and on to Boston to see Al's people for a visit. The Tom Alexanders are going to be in the mountains of Western North Carolina. They have recently moved into their new home, and during the summer they are going to exchange houses with a professor from Boston who will be out here for summer school. The Young lady who is crowned Miss Georgia in Columbus next month will have to be not only very pretty, but very talented if she takes the honor. From John Griffin, who is working in the Sea Island Bank, Joan is representing her home town of Dublin at the state beauty contest. —Well see you AROUND TOWN.

Where's The Machine?

A CENTURY AGO, 75 per cent of all the workers in this country were engaged in agriculture—in producing the food and allied products they and the small non-agricultural population consumed. Even as late as 1916 one person in three worked on the farm. Today, the figure is one in six.

In other words, we depend upon fewer farmers for all the varied agricultural products we have. And the farmers' ability to meet the demand is primarily the result of the application of power to farm jobs.

Last year, according to the New Mexico State Extension Service, U. S. farmers used 7,000,000 tons of finished steel—more than is used in a year's automobile output—along with 15,000,000 gallons of crude petroleum, 320,000,000 pounds of raw rubber, 15,000,000 kilowatt-hours of electric power, and vast quantities of other materials. These resources were used largely to produce, operate and maintain all manner of machines which perform the basic farm tasks swiftly, efficiently and cheaply; which have greatly reduced the amount of muscle-power needed; and which are the farmers' principal allies in preventing erosion and water damage and in preserving and improving the ability of his soil to produce.

On the average, each of us 150,000,000-odd Americans eats more than three-quarters of a ton of food annually. Only a few hundred of us are needed to supply that incredible quantity of food along with large amounts for export. That is the measure of the farm equipment industry's contribution to agriculture.

Where Is The Top?

THE SAYING, "There's always room at the top," has grown trite from endless repetition. But, like all such homely adages, there is more truth than poetry in it. In business after business, especially the larger ones, finding really competent executive talent of both an administrative and a technical character is an ever-present headache. Business, like the world it exists in, has become tremendously complex. It must have managers who are capable of dealing effectively with vital problems concerning labor, markets, taxation, competition, laws and regulations, and all manner of other matters—just as it must have engineers who understand technical problems which are as obscure to the laymen as the African dialect. Corporations today compete as vigorously for grade-A personnel as they do for business.

To make the situation more difficult, industry has found that it must face a very critical related problem—that of keeping its executives alive and in good condition for a normal working span. The space of modern business life in the upper executive levels has been exacting a heavy toll of able men at a relatively youthful age.

Time magazine dealt with this situation in a recent article which carried the grim heading, "The Pace That Kills." The first paragraph said, "Does the high pressure of their jobs cause top executives to die earlier than other men? Though industry still lacks the statistics to make a watertight case, the answer seems to be, yes."

Time went on to list some of the unhappy facts that have been produced so far. New York's Life Extension Examiners checked over more than 25,000 executives with an average age of 45.5 years, and found that only 20 per cent were in normal health. At a Chicago hospital fifty-five executives under 50 were examined, and only three were free from organic disorders. When 340 executives of one of the greatest corporations reported for medical checkup, it was found that 235 had something wrong with them, and in 192 cases the disorders were serious. In another very large corporation 189 members of the top management died during the five year analysis. The American Fidelity and Casualty Company states that the average businessman dies six years before his time. This represents both a heavy human waste and a heavy economic waste. As estimated, Time said, "that a $20,000-a-year executive represents a $250,000 investment by his company."

The result is that more and more concerns are going in heavily for executive health programs—one observes or terms these programs "the hottest thing in medicine today." Generally speaking, they are on a voluntary basis, but every encouragement is given to the executives to participate. Often the men are sent to special clinics for a period of days and in some cases they take their wives with them and enjoy recreational pursuits in idle time. The cost ranges from $35 to $125 a year per executive, and, to quote Time again, "Corporations with health programs are convinced that they are hard-headed business investments." All kinds of ill up to the potentially fatal are unearthed in the early stages when successful treatment is possible. Another benefit, in the words of one big company's medical director, is that "When an executive doesn't have to worry about his health, he feels and works better."

Crutches and Chairs

HARVEY MIDDLETON, president of the Railway Business Association, recently wrote on some of the major problems confronting the railroad industry today. Two of the most serious are inadequate earnings and inequitable competition. Of these, Mr. Middleton said: "There is no cheaper insurance for the nation as a whole than for the regulatory authorities to permit the railways to earn enough to maintain and improve their properties and pay a reasonable return to those whose money is needed to keep the railways going. . . . half of the commercial passenger traffic of the country, and therefore an early solution of the problems created by the existing inequalities in regulation and competition is essential in the interests of our peacetime economy. It is equally important from the standpoint of national security."

"Some," he suggested, that the answer might be to equalize the situation by some form of subsidy to the railways. The railway industry, our strongest bulwark against socialism, does not ask and does not want any subsidy. That would be an entering wedge to the nationalization. As U. S. Senator John W. Bricker of Ohio, remarked, not long ago: "Government crutches too often turn into chains." In transportation, as in any enterprise, the public interest requires that none be either favored or penalized, that all compete on a fair basis, and that all have the chance to gain a fair return for services rendered. That is the only sound policy.

Favoring Monopoly

RECENTLY the state of Massachusetts decided to grant exclusive rights to a single supplier to sell gasoline and other oil products on its Limited Access Highways. It requested a number of oil companies to submit bids.

An official of one of these companies replied that this concern would not be a party to the state's plan. He said that some of the requirements imposed upon bidders were unrealistic and arbitrary. He suggested an alternate plan to permit a number of oil companies to operate service facilities. Then he made this point:

"The fruits of monopoly are always higher prices and poorer service to the public. . . . The American motorist is the best served in all the world only because of the keen competition that exists among the oil companies."

What gives the Massachusetts situation national significance is the example of a state promoting monopoly. The American oil industry has performed miracles in peace and war. It has met a demand that would have been considered impossible a relative short time ago. This, of course, is a tribute to the aggressiveness and know-how of the industry and the men and women who staff it. But it is more than that. It is an example of how free competition, with thousands of concerns looking for business and trying to outdo each other, makes for peak production—and, at the same time, for fair prices and the best service. The Massachusetts proposal would not produce such results.

If we would do unto others as we would have them do unto us, perhaps they would do unto us as we did unto them; try it for a change.

MANY MATTERS OF NATIONAL IMPORT

Home Demonstration Group Stress Many Special Phases Of Safe Home Management

This is National Home Demonstration Week, according to Mrs. Bule Williams, president of the Home Demonstration Council. We could not confine all of our activities to one week, says Mrs. Williams; in fact, we began National Home Demonstration Week with our Annual Family Life Institute on April 24th. This was a most enjoyable occasion for many club ladies. The meeting was held at Georgia Teachers College, with several of the faculty members participating. The theme was "Our Children and Our Times." Miss Maude White, family life chairman of the Nevils Home Demonstration Club, presided. Dr. Fielding Russell gave us a hearty welcome to Georgia Teachers College, and Claud W. Gilstrap led in a most inspiring devotion. Fred Lenfestey, of Georgia Teachers College, talked on "Our Children and Our Times." This was followed by a panel discussion of "Rural Children and School Consolidation." Miss Martha McAlpine, state family life specialist, was the moderator.

Others taking part on the panel were: H. P. Womack, county school superintendent; Miss Sara Hall, child welfare director; Miss Caroline Wingard, head of home economics department, Georgia Teachers College; Claud W. Gilstrap, educational director of Baptist church; Mrs. Carl Franklin, mother of a beginner in schools; Raymond Hodges, father of an elementary child; Mrs. Bobbie Warnock, public health nurse; Max Lockwood, recreation leader.

The afternoon session was very entertaining too. Music students of Georgia Teachers College presented solos, duets and piano selections. We then watched movies, "You and Your Family," "You and Your Friends," and "Or Skates and Elephants." Miss McAlpine discussed these films with us.

Mrs. Williams tells us of many other interesting things taking place in Bulloch county this week. The fifteen Home Demonstration Clubs will put exhibits in the various downtown store windows, which exhibits will display articles made by Home Demonstration Club members recently. Some of the clubs are tracing the history of Home Demonstration work from 1903-1953. One club is having a tour of their vegetable gardens in connection with their regular club meeting.

We are having three special radio programs, one giving the history of Home Demonstration work. We plan to climax our activities with our county-wide dress revue on May 22nd, when the three top winners in each community club will compete for first place in the county. This winner will represent Bulloch county at the state dress revue in Athens on June 12th.

Like Minkovitz is again sponsoring our county Home Demonstration dress revue, furnishing prize money for first, second and third place winners.

Please let me urge all Home Demonstration Club members to join in this week and make our Fifth Anniversary the best ever. You will be "Building Better Homes for More Democratic Living," which is our theme for 1953.

Paid In Silver Dollars

SUPPOSE THE LAW provided that taxes must be paid in silver dollars. If that were the case, a California power and light utility would need a fleet of 237 ten-ton trucks to carry its 1952 tax payments to the offices of the federal, state and local collectors.

This company's total 1952 tax bill came to almost $79,000,000, which was $29,636,000 more than its payroll costs, and $32,810,000 more than it paid in dividends to its 198,200 stockholders—the people whose savings make the company's existence possible. Moreover, the taxes amounted to $5.87 per share of common stock outstanding, almost three times the $2 per share dividend now paid on this stock. In short, when it comes to dividing company earnings the government does a whole lot better than either the owners or employees. Taxes constitute the largest single item in the utility's budget.

In every section of the country—except for those areas where tax exempt subsidized power development has supplanted private power development—utilities are among the largest and most dependable taxpayers. They play an important financial role in keeping government going—all the way from the local school district to Washington itself.

The socialists, of course, don't like this state of affairs. They want the government to build subsidized, tax-free and tax-consuming power systems and thus destroy the tax revenues the investor-owned utilities provide. And that's one of the reasons why the vast majority of our citizens want no part of socialism—they don't want still higher taxes.

One nice thing about being a man is that you don't have to grab your trousers with both hands every time a puff of wind comes around the corner.

DeLoach Interment

In Local Cemetery

Funeral services for Jack F. DeLoach Jr., 16, who was killed in a plane crash at Swainsboro Friday, were held Sunday at the Swainsboro Baptist Church at 3 p. m. by Rev. V. L. Leopold and Rev. Byron Kennerly. Interment followed later in Statesboro's East Side cemetery.

Young DeLoach was the son of Jack F. DeLoach, of DeLoach Mortuary, and Mrs. Margaret Aldred DeLoach. He was a junior in Swainsboro High School.

Pallbearers were Charles Daniels, Dick Herrington, Roy Hayes, Jack Lawton, John Hart, Dickie Daniels, Reese McCullough and Joel Griffin.

Private Enterprise

GOVERNOR DEWEY states that New York City must transfer its money-losing city-owned subways to a new transit authority which will be required to operate them without a deficit.

The Freeman magazine commended the governor for his political courage, then added: "But in our judgment the problem will never be properly settled until the city turns the subways to private ownership and management. We Americans are supposed to be against socialism; but most of us have been more against the name than the fact. For years the Tennessee Valley Authority was sacrosanct. It was considered blasphemous not only to criticize it, but even to point out that it was socialist. Yet the very definition of socialism is public ownership and management of the means of production."

Luckily for the American future, many of us are getting a much clearer idea of what socialism is—and what to do about it. As an example, support has been given to the proposal that the government get out of the electric-power business and the rest of the businesses in which it is involved in tax-subsidized, tax-exempt competition with heavily-taxed private enterprise. And, meanwhile, sentiment in and out of Washington is now in favor of holding down appropriations for government business to an absolute minimum.

The pendulum swung far in the direction of socialism—with all the menace to freedom that implies. It remains to be seen whether it will swing back.

Physic and Booze

THE PRINCIPAL argument used in advancing so-called medicine is that the cost of adequate medical care is beyond the means of most people. That argument, when assayed in the light of certain facts won't stand the acid test.

In 1951, for example, we spent about $13,000,000,000 for medical services. In the same year we spent $13,200,000,000 for alcoholic beverages, tobacco and smoking supplies. In other words, the medical care bill was practically the same as the bill for commodities which can't be described as necessities by any stretch of the imagination.

Tens of millions of workers and their families subscribe to voluntary prepayment health insurance plans. No one claims that these plans are perfect or all-inclusive. But they do a splendid job in cushioning the economic shock of illness, and their benefits and coverages are being steadily broadened. The cost is within the means of the vast majority of employed people.

It is true that there are unfortunately who are entirely or almost entirely without resources to meet the cost of illness. They represent a very small minority of the population. They can be helped to whatever extent is needed without destroying our whole medical system as we know it, and making the politician the boss of the doctor—at a tremendous cost to the taxpayers.

In no other major nation has there been greater medical progress than in the United States—and in none do more of the people get such excellent care. That is an achievement of free medicine, not socialized medicine or politically run medicine.

Here's The Low Down From Hickory Grove

While the crew is now down there in Spentdown-on-the-Potomac—and while it is off to a pretty good start—is the time to join in and come to the aid of your country like all good men should. With rolling off coffee and controls of automobile building, and the theories of the Bureau Boys blowing up in their faces, it is time to tell Mr. Ike and his crew that they are starting out pretty skookum. Chrysler is building more cars and selling 'em for less since the crew came off. Theories got a hazy-maker—but we need go further. Winning one round don't win the whole fracas.

The time to put in your ear is now if we are to get all the barnacles off the old boat-stead. Also if we are to see to it that new barnacles do not take the places of the old, we need practice our penmanship via post cards to our congress. Coming to the aid of our country when aid is a duty, is now.

The well-fed crew numbering in the thousands and thousands are still there in Bureaucracy—they are doing us no good—they will hang on until pried loose. If you choose to show you are a citizen of the first water—and still think we can make something of a bad mess, opportunity is rattling your door knob. And to the sweet little woman I say this—if your big hero don't grab his pen and get busy, he is not the guy you been thinking of.

Farm Bureau Activities

(By BYRON DYER)

Make certain sweet potato plants bought are certified and free of any weevils, G. E. Moore, fieldman from Tifton for the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine, advised the West Side Farm Bureau Tuesday night. Mr. Moore stated that sweet potato weevils are in some of the nearby counties, Toombs for one, as well as the lower counties in the state and most of Florida. When they infest a field, that farm and all nearby farms just have to discontinue growing sweet potatoes for a year or so to starve them out, he declared. Sweet potatoes infested with weevils cannot be used for food or even hog feed, he stated. Buying plants from infested areas or hauling crates of any kind, like tobacco plants, from these areas will bring the weevil here.

Isaac Bunce gave the group a report on his visit to the Farm Bureau office in Washington, D. C., as well as their tour of the Department of Agriculture's office. Mr. Bunce stated that it was impossible for any individual to realize the work of the Farm Bureau until they actually saw first hand all the work that the organization was doing in behalf of farm people.

The Bulloch County Four, composed of Carl Bishop, Bernard Banks, Otis and Charlie Joe Hollingsworth, with Lewis Hursey at the piano, provided the entertainment for the West Side meeting.

Brooklet held its annual talent and queen contest at their meeting last Wednesday night. Miss Maude Sparks was named queen, and later represented the community in the county contest on Thursday night. Other entries in the queen contest were Misses Joan Denmark and Stella Connor.

The colorful talent program, with all contestants in costume, was won with a gypsy tea garden song and dance by Miss Kay Ann McCormick and Paul Brisendine. They were also in the county contest Thursday. The other contestants did a Dutch garden song and dance; Lewis and Kay Ann Hendrix in a duet, a group of Irish songs played in five xylophones, and an old-fashioned daisy song and dance.

Mrs. C. W. Lee, Mrs. Dan C. Lee, Miss Maude White and Miss Nona Quinn were the judges at Brooklet. Mrs. A. C. Watts, Mrs. Carolyn Lee, Miss Ollie Mae Lanier, Mrs. Ethel Smith and Mrs. John Cromley arranged the program.

Ivanhoe discussed the various insects and pests found in the corn, tobacco, sweet potato, gardens and cotton fields, and methods of controlling them. Leaflets listing the various pests and insecticides needed to control them were made available to all the members present at their meeting Friday night.

OGEECHEE RIVER W.M.U.

Between Us.

BY RUTH HEAVER

It's always good to get news from our people who are a great distance from us. Several months ago A. K. Amason and his family went to Italy to join Hubert, who is in military service over there. A. K. and the children flew over and had a wonderful trip, making stops in New Foundland, Ireland, Austria and London. They finally reached their father's home in Italy, and before they got off the plane the children spotted their father who was smiling and happy over their safe journey. The house was filled with the children's excitement.
